Located in magnificent Mobile, Alabama on historical Royal Street, The Battle House is a Renaissance Hotel designed to pamper and delight guests for years to come.

This southern gem was originally built in 1852 and enjoyed years of success before closing in the mid-70s for a well planned and long deserved renovation. The Battle House is due to reopen in the summer of 2007 following an elaborate and costly renovation. The whispers are plentiful and many are waiting with baited breath to see the luscious overhaul of this magnificent resort.

The plan for the renovations focused on opulence and decadence all along. Sparing no expense, The Battle House has gained national attention with its prime location near the Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail, as well as its well appointed 30 suites and over 200 other guests rooms. Another special perk is that upon re-opening the 8-story Battle House will be a non-smoking resort.

Even though the glorious rooms of the Battle House are something to drool over, you will be even more impressed with the luxurious and divine spa that has also been completely refurbished. The massive undertaking left the Battle House with a spa that invades every sense and tickles the fantasies of that little spoiled rotten child in all of us.

So, with the newly remodeled and majestically appointed Battle House, the owners have decided to also pay attention to the frequent business traveler and not just the Alabama vacation crowd looking to be delighted. When traveling on business it is stressful enough as it is, so if you can relax at the day's end and enjoy some of the amenities of the resort then perhaps business travel won't be sad bad and perhaps it will be even more successful.

If you are looking to host a business meeting or even a small gathering of clients, then look no further than the Battle House. With over 26,000 square feet and 12 meeting rooms, this historic grand lady is sure to please your business clients as well. Service to business clients is designed to be seamless and to allow you to focus on the work at hand.

The attention to detail is one of the recurring themes of this resort. The nightly turn down service, the complimentary coffee and tea located in each room and the morning newspaper found at your doorstep are just a few simple examples of the quiet customer service that is standard at the Battle House.

So if you are in need of nourishment, the Battle House doesn't disappoint. If you are looking for just the right place for breakfast or lunch, be sure to stop by the Joe Cain Caf, which offers gourmet coffees, pastries and pretty little sandwiches. If Italy is calling your name, the on site you will find the exquisite Trellis Room, where a spread of Italian food awaits your arrival. And at the end of a long day, if you are looking to relax, then be sure to stop at the Royal Street Lounge, where you will find nightly entertainment and homegrown cocktails.

Also, within just minutes of the resort you will find several recreational activities in which you can indulge...that is if you can tear yourself away from the magnificent resort.

If you are looking for a vacation along the Gulf Shores of Alabama or if you have a business trip taking you into the Mobile area, do yourself a favor and book a stay at the enduring and glorious Battle House, one of the great southern gems.
