

Care Considerations help us stay on top of our health

As part of your health benefits you might get a letter called a Care Consideration with important information about your health.

Wouldn't it be great if someone was looking out for you and your family to make sure you are getting safe, high quality health care? That's exactly what ActiveHealth does. If the system sees medications that shouldn't be mixed together or maybe a test or a screening that could possibly help you, it lets you and your doctor know by sending you a letter called a Care Consideration.

A Care Consideration can:

- Alert you to potential safety issues
- Suggest tests, screenings or treatments that may help you
- Inform you about opportunities for better healthcare
